To whom it my concern, my name is Devon Keck. I have been a graduate of Philadelphia Technician Training Institute since 2023. I started my new career as an Automation/Maintenance Technician upon graduating. After completing my class hours, I was assigned to Professional Development where I was introduced to my now mentor, Cathy Purdie.

“Mrs. Purdie”, as we call her, is the director of professional development. Cathy Purdie’s development process is a sold foundation to lead to positive outcomes though discipline, investing and planning. These three steps give the necessary skills to broaden your career path while maximizing your potential.

- Construct a Five-Year Business Plan – Having a vision/plan allows you move forward for success. Connect with liked-minded professionals and businesses.
- Investment – Investing in counited education, personnel budgeting, life insurance and entrepreneurship to boost your chances for success.
- Discipline – Courage gives you the ability to start new professional endeavors i.e. start school, career preparations, and stepping out of your comfort zone. Having discipline will allow you to complete your task and complete those endeavors you started.

The focus points above are vetted by Cathy Purdie that produce successful and positive outcomes. I can speak from experience that these focus points hold true when done correctly. It is her leadership skills and commitment that shine though to people, including myself, to strive to be the best version of themselves they can be.
